

Lindsay Baldassano

Author, Intuitive,
Spiritual Business Leadership
coach

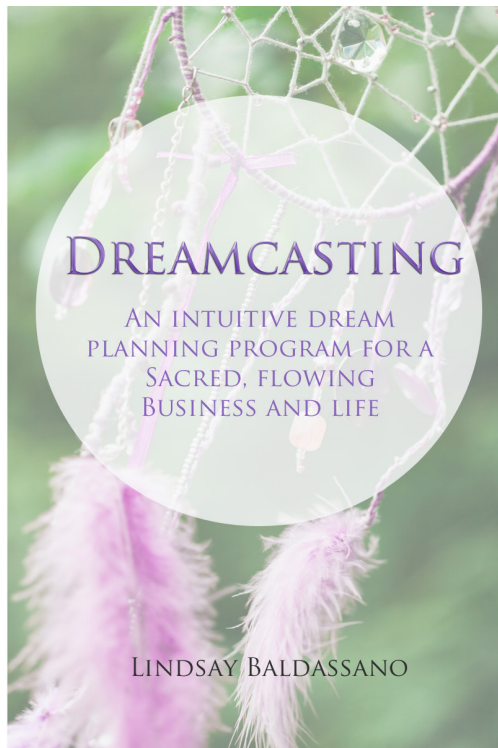

I am honored to work with spiritually gifted women as they answer the call to begin their soul's mission and dream a larger dream for their lives and purpose. They have a huge capacity for integrity, compassion, and honor that it stirs my heart to see them struggle with traditional business models, models of planning and productivity, and masculine-centered leadership practices. Through a series of sessions, my clients and I move through outdated models and beliefs that might be inadvertently holding them back or causing them to stay stuck in feelings of "not enough-ness". This process is centered on reclaiming their natural ideas and beliefs about feminine and spiritual leadership, so that they can claim their place in the modern business world without compromising their ethics, heart, integrity, or beliefs.

I've worked with empaths, psychics, and other intuitives for over ten years to help them feel comfortable in their own light, accept their gifts as a source of strength, rather than feeling their sensitivities are a burden. This deepening of their path uncovers their natural spiritual leadership skills, gives them structure to thrive with, and helps them achieve a more balanced and fulfilling life.

I wrote Dreamcasting to fill a gap in the spiritual business market. Planners like the Desire Map, Fire Starter Sessions, and even Your Shining Year provide a good beginners look at how to bring your external goals into alignment with your Soul desires. But for the more conscious business woman, like me, I needed a little less fluff and a little more structure. While many think that planning and intuition and creativity have little to do with one another, with the right kind of structure a creative or intuitive person can not only succeed, but tap their inner genius and wisdom for marketing and strategy, as well as with their innate spiritual gifts.

Lindsay has a BA in Anthropology/sociology from Mansfield U of PA. She has traveled to study many cultures, religions, and beliefs, past and present. With over ten years as a professional intuitive reader on and offline, she dedicates herself to helping other intuitives create the life and income they dream of attaining through coaching sessions and packages. She resides in Mountain Top, Pa in her house by a creek with her husband, daughter, two dogs, and tons of deer.

Dreamcasting is like the Fire Starter Sessions meets Eckhart Tolle.

Lindsay shows sensitive, intuitive women that there is nothing wrong with their gifts, feeling their sensitive emotions, or going for their dreams. Their spiritual gifts are meant to help them rise to help lead others.

Many spiritual and creative women feel they are too creative or "out there" to stick to a planner and really focus in on their goals and how they show their work to the world. This book will show them how to both use their spiritual gifts and insight AND take on the world!

"Planning for intuition isn't about forcing the intuitive or creative process, but rather building the devotion to be open and receiving new information, energy, and inspiration every step along the way."

From Dreamcasting:

"Reality= you are Divine."

"While we cannot always plan or predict what guidance will ask of us, we can create a life that is devoted to keeping those open spaces for intuition and our Divine-self to speak."

"In order to birth our work, our service, our destiny, we must learn to birth from our inner most Divine-self."

"We must be present to breathe, center, feel, decide, and rise moment to moment."

"It's on the daily level that the magick of new things happens."

"Bit by bit, we forge a new path, a new way of being. Breath by breath, we have to make new choices for ourselves."

"There is never a point in time when our energy is less than whole."

"By holding on to these energies of hurt, we create parts of ourselves that we are literally holding in shadow, away from the light."

"Our good feelings are meant to bolster us for greater working, more growth, further Be-comings."

"The more time we take to get relaxed and clear about what we are doing, the faster the Great Work happens and the more productive we are. The more productive and flowing we feel, the more relaxed and at peace we feel. It's a positive feedback loop!"

Dreamcasting is available in softcover and digital version on Amazon and all major channels.

What People are saying about Lindsay:

"I don't know what I'd do without Lindsay! I grew up with a family that didn't get me at all. Repressed and mocked me. I used my gift of empathy to belong to my own world, shielding myself from life. Protecting myself from those who didn't understand. When I started working with Lindsay, I started to truly break free of that and come into myself. It was a process of letting go of insecurities. Breaking down my protective walls. Becoming confident. Losing the anxiety and constant worrying so that I could be me and not care so much of what others thought. I took a very brave step and went part time at my day job to build a life/fitness coaching business."

—Andrea D., Swoyersville, Pa

"I get paralyzed with fear and overwhelm, when I don't grasp what I'm doing. I knew this all along but couldn't bring myself to feel into it, own it and admit it out loud. I was a great excuse maker! I've taken responsibility for that, and I'm so joyed to report this past weekend I actually had a paying customer for a reading! You were sent to me, you have gone above the fear, I am behind you, learning. Not one person in my family ever really "made it" so to speak, I am the first to rise above the fear, I am the first to listen to the guidance and actually do something with it. I wouldn't be shining if it wasn't for all your loving, generous, patient help! You are an amazing woman!"
